COUNTY NEEDS MORE PROMOTION, SAYS LEETE

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

MARCH 30, 1851—It is astonishing how many people are coming to California. The hills are crowded with miners and prospectors and we hear good reports everywhere. Dozens pass by our cabin every day, bound for the streams farther up the mountains, and as many more on their way back. It don't seem possible, but it is strange the number of hard luck stories one hears, for there are many who are disgusted with the country and are tramping their way back to San Francisco. There was a big fire in Nevada last week and all of the principal stores, hotels and houses were burned down.

We have had a sad case on the creek. Allen Talbot, who is little more than a boy, has been ailing all winter and has been struck with paralysis. He is completely helpless and the doctor says the only chance he has is to go to the hospital. He had no money, so we raised a subscription. Pard and I gave a hundred and fifty dollars. The lad was taken away yesterday and it is a question if he ever recovers.

The Story of Sweetland

By Ada Perry Landsburg

Editor's Note: Ada Perry Landsburg was born in the little town of Sweetland, January 30, 1859. She was the daughter of John and Lydia Perry, and spent many years there as well as in Relief Hill, North Bloomfield and Nevada City.

She and her husband moved to Kuna, Idaho, to be near her daughter, Linda. Some years after her husband passed away, she had the misfortune to fall, and has been bed ridden for more than ten years.

THE BUCKEYE MINE

We have no idea how long the Buckeye Mine had been working when the Hiscox family came in 1858, but know that it had paid well at times. Hydraulicing was the method used, but instead of the monitor used at a later date, three small hose were used and although quite powerful, were not sufficiently so to loosen enough of the high bank, so drifting was resorted to, and small tunnels wre run (they were called drifts) on a level with the floor of the mine, into the bank, sometimes two or three. These were loaded with powder (at the time black powder) which properly arranged with fuse, could be lighted and as a result would bring down tons of earth which could be washed away into the sluices prepared to receive it.

On May 12, 1865, Hiscox, starting for the mine said to his wife, "In three months we will be on easy street, meaning, that they would be in pay dirt. For sometime they had lost the lead and had been doing what was known as dead work, but now were in hopes of finding the lead again. He went to work, but was brought home maimed and bleeding and unconscious and died at sundown, and was later laid to rest in the little cemetery east of, and adjacent to his home, by a small grave containing the remains of a small grandchild, the infant son of William and Edna J. Menner.

The accident which had taken the life of the mine owner was occasioned by a huge cave, which had spread to the hose, and a dam formed before the water could be Harley M. Leete, Jr., owner and publisher of the Nevada City-Grass Valley Nugget, the Nugget Shopper, and the Nugget Press, in this issue of the Shopper tells his views on the economic opportunity facing Nevada county. Leete, a World War II veteran, says that the economic growth of the county depends in large part on tourist trade and residential attractions.

BUSINESS MAN WANTS TO HELP BUILD ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY

NEVADA CITY: "Too little attention is paid by the county to promotion and advertising," says Harley M. Leete, Jr., candidate for Supervisor of Nevada county, from the Nevada City district.

"Just look at the budget," Leete continued, "$6,650 is the amount allowed by the Board of Supervisors for the year ending June 30, 1948, for advertising county resources. Compare this to the figure allowed for maintenance of county jails, $7,075."

"The figure for jails is probably in a correct proportion to the rest of county expenditures. But advertising and promotion are sadly neglected.

"Nevada county has a big economic future ahead of it . . . providing it seizes its opportunity. Private industry will take care of developing the mines, but the people as a whole, represented both by their promotional organizations and their county government, must help to attract the tourist trade.

"This may be done in two ways: (1) Advertise the county's many and varied attractions in the usual manner through outside publications, billboards, folders, direct mail, and every other possible means. (2) Inaugurate and continue work within the county on the project of making Nevada county known as what it is: one of the most attractive places in the world to live.

"How can this be done?

"Only by having a Board of Supervisors with a youthful, forward-looking spirit. An aid to any new supervisor, in helping the county to take advantage of its opportunity to capitalize on lucrative tourist trade, would be a background of advertising.

"The policy of promotion and advertising, of cooperation between the supervisors and local promotional organizations could increase the prosperity of the county as a whole to a measure hitherto undreamed of.

"The other counties of the Sierras are getting set in a big way to take advantage of the terrific national California Centennial publicity. Why is Nevada county hanging back?

"The time to express our belief in the economic future of Nevada county," Leete concluded, "will never be any riper. The time is now. The voters of the first supervisorial district should keep in mind the unexploited opportunity, so far neglected, which lies before the county, ready to be opened up by a new and progressive spirit on the Board of Supervisors, helping to spark-plug and aid in every way the efforts of such organizations of the Sierra-Nevada Chamber of Commerce, the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce, the Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Truckee Chamber of Commerce."

CHORUS GIVES SPLENDID REVUE OF VARIED AND DIFFICULT MUSIC; TOBIASSEN'S DIRECTION GOOD

NEVADA CITY: Under the masterful direction of William Tobiassen, high school vocal teacher, the High School chorus on Wednesday night gave a full-fledged concert for the Lions Club at Deer Creek Inn.

Difficult multi-part compositions were performed with tonal clarity and accomplished timing. Tobiassen, himself a noted singer, sang with the chorus and had his youthful vocalists in responsive co-ordination throughout.

The program included: a Fred Waring arrangement of Sir Arthur Sullivan's immortal "Onward Christian Soldiers," with the choral effects characteristic of Waring's music.

"God Bless Our Home" by Bernard Hamben, a three-part arrangement of a song expressing devotion to God and to the home. Jackie Sheldon was accompanist.

A Noble Cain arrangement of a Southern Melody, "Who's That A Callin'?", a composition calling for interest, enthusiasm and humor on the part of the performers.

Lora Hayhurst, soloist, sang the song introduced by Gracie Fields and popularlized by Eddie Howard, "Now Is the Hour." The second chorus was sung to the humming accompaniment of the singers.

"God So Loved the World," one of the most famous of the choral numbers composed by John Stainer. This is a musical setting of a passage from the Bible that is very often quoted. (God so loved the world, that he gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. John 3:16). It is one of the choruses included in Stainer's Cantata, "The Crucifixion."

A four part arrangement by Noble Cain of P. Tschaikowsky's "Legend" (Long, Long Ago). This is written in the minor mode, and the words are very expressive in their thought. The song deals with the story of the Christ child and the sacrifices He made.

(Story)

Long, long ago the stories tell
How Jesu here on earth did dwell.
While yet a child, so young and fair
He made a garden rich and rare.
The flowers blossomed everywhere
Whenever Jesu wandered there.
Then other children came to play
With Jesu Child the livelong day.
Oft they would breathe the odors sweet
That from the garden them did greet—
Roses so red were blooming there
In Jesu's garden rich and rare.
"Here, take these roses," Jesu said,
"And make a wreath to deck thy head."
Then took the stems to crown His own;
The thorns He took, Himself alone.

Barbara Lavorite sang the popular, "The Stars Will Remember," accompanied by Jackie Sheldon.

As the concluding number the chorus sang a Ben Masham arrangement of "Soldiers of God," the official march of the Chaplain's Corps of the U. S. Army, a number that has much spiritual power, as well as choral beauty.

As a rule, considering the exposure and hardships, the most of us are in the best of health. It's a queer sort of life we lead; back-breaking work all day; doing our cooking and washing; no amusements, except a friendly game of euchre and an occasional trip to town. There is nothing there worth while, except the gambling saloons and the Mexican girls at the fandango house. We long for the company of decent women, and while there are a few scattered around and more coming, still the miners do not get much chance to associate with them. I am looked upon as particularly favored, because Madame Ferrand rides out to the claim to see me, and it is a pleasure to be with her, but that will all end shortly. Pard and I are going to the Bay next week and she is going along, and will leave for France shortly after. She sold her share in the French claim for seven thousand dollars and tells me she has got about forty thousand dollars put away. That is a pretty good stake for a woman. I have learned quite lot of French and can talk a little to her in her own language.

Sam Carter was bitten by a rattlesnake last week over on Round Mountain. He was out hunting and sat down on a log and the snake struck him in the leg. He cut out the bite with his knife, rushed to town and the doctor brought him through all right, but it was a narrow squeak.

Kellog has finished his ditch to Brush Creek. It

Storm Facts Set Right

Col. Jason Z. Pemmican, a survivor of the famous eastern blizzard of '88, who has been too indignant over comparisons of recent snowstorms with it to speak calmly, has succeeded in regaining his composure sufficiently to get a few things off his chest. "Mere flurries our modern snowfalls!" declared the colonel. "Nothing beyond a thin covering of light flakes! Any survivor of the blizzard of '88 would have been glad to have brushed away the highest drifts on Manhattan Island with his hat.

"The blizzard of '88 was a blizzard. It had zero weather, terrific gales and more snow, no matter what our incompetent and uninformed weather bureaus say. I don't care what the weather man says about more snow on the level in this peewee storm. None of it was on the level in '88, and four dozen stalwart men who went out to measure it were never heard of again. Their instruments were later found in a snowslide 75 miles north.

"In New York a bronze eagle, weighing 28 pounds, atop the Grand Union Hotel, was blown clear across Brooklyn and later found buried under six feet of snow on the roof of a bath house at Coney Island. A cigar store Indian near Niblo's Gardens got caught in an ice floe and was later found in the lobby of Barnum's Museum miles away. A marble statue of Daniel Webster that was away uptown for that era got turned completely around in a sudden gust and ice cracked the base.

"A farmer milking a cow in a shed on a farm where the Commodore Hotel now stands got brick ice cream. He started for his cottage 100 yards away but was buried in snow before he made it. The cow was in a perfect state of preservation that July, but it took time to get the ice off. Why I felt so cold for years after that blizzard that ten years later I went to the Klondike which seemed to me like a summer resort.

Special Delivery Letters

Ex-King Michael of Romania,

Dear Mike:

What a break you got in getting kicked out! Not to have to go on being a king anywhere on earth these days, especially in the Balkans, oh boy! I bet it was like getting a last minute pardon after what looked like a life stretch.

It seems only yesterday that your picture was a rotogravure special. You were just a scared looking kid who seemed always to be asking "Where's popper this time?" Most of the time you couldn't figure whether the old gent was a king or a traveling man and you must have had a tough time as a child understanding whether you were to succeed to a throne or a sleeping car. The old gent abdicated so often that the Romanian throne was the only one in the world that had to be fitted with metal slots with the words "Occupied" and "Unoccupied."

It looked for a while as if Moscow would be brutal enough to let you go on being king, but just when no escape seemed at hand you fell in love and went in for a capitalistic thing like engagement and marriage without the necessary Kremlin passports to a private life, and presto you were let out without even two weeks' notice and only small severence pay.

Congratulations, however, as it was a close call. Now you can love a fine young woman, marry her and sit around in a bathrobe, while the wife cooks some scrambled eggs, without bringing on international complications, threatening world peace providing Vishinsky nuts. What is more you can come home at night, kiss the wife and say "What's new, toots?" without being accused of warmongering.

You deserved it, Michael, my boy.

SILVER LINING

On winter I am keeping score—
The sky is dark
At half-past four,
But here's a thought
To warm the heart—
The season barely gets a start
Before the days
Start lengthening,
And later sunsets
Hint that spring,
Though distant,
Can't be far behind.
'Tis thus to gooseflesh
I'm resigned.

is about three miles long. He has agreed not to interfere with us, but there is plenty of water for everybody.

APRIL 6, 1851.—Pard, the Madame and I are off for the Bay tomorrow. It was a question what we would do with our claim, as under mining law a day's work must be done every week to hold it. Finally Tom Gleason and Jack Fisk agreed to strip top dirt for us once a week, we to pay them an ounce apiece a day for their work. They are good friends of ours and will keep the jumpers off. Pard is the leader and the most popular man on the creek and we are not afraid of any of our neighbors, but some outsiders might take a notion to the ground. We live up to our home-made law strictly and it is understood that unless the specified amount of work is done the claim is open to location, even when the tools have been left in it. We have had

Kathleen Norris Says:

More Postwar Wreckage

Bell Syndicate. WNU Features.

"When Arthur came home he showed no interest in Gwendolyn or the baby."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE war scrambled many marriages that might have worked out all right in ordinary times. This letter comes to me from Oregon. Gwendolyn thinks her situation is intolerable and insoluble. I can't see that it is so difficult but, without knowing more about the people involved, I can give only a general answer. It is hard to tell, from her letter, just how adequate Gwendolyn is as a wife, or how strong Arthur's character is.

Gwendolyn was a telephone operator when she met Arthur. They were both just 19. He was in the tank corps, soon to go overseas. Three weeks after they danced together they were married. They spent a happy month honeymooning in a seaside cottage lent them by a friend. Then Arthur had to depart for active duty in Europe.

For five months Gwendolyn continued with her job; then being an orphan with little money, she went to live with Arthur's mother in a town a hundred miles away. A few months later a daughter was born. Gwendolyn went back to work, and Arthur's mother, Catherine, who kept boarders, took care of the baby.

"I hadn't wanted Arthur to marry at all at his age," writes Catherine. Therefore I didn't exactly welcome his wife, Gwendolyn, when she came to me. In time, however, I came to love her, and I am very fond of her baby. Gwendolyn is a weak, tearful little woman, entirely dependent on me for moral support.

"Everything was going along all right until a letter came from Arthur, who then was stationed in England. He had met a WAC, fallen in love with her, and forgotten all about his wife in the United States. In short, he wanted a divorce from Gwendolyn so he could marry Dorothy, the WAC. The shock made Gwendolyn hysterical, and this condition worsened into a long illness.

"When Arthur came home he showed no interest in Gwendolyn or the baby. He lived at a hotel, never spending a night here. During his overseas period he had grown up very much. He is now strong, firm-willed and different from when he left. We hardly recognize him, he is so changed. Gwendolyn is continually in tears.

He Owns the House.

"Soon after he arrived he made it plain that he intended to marry Dorothy as soon as legal obstacles were cleared up. He also said that he wants to live in the house, which he owns. Furthermore, he wants me to influence Gwendolyn to give him the divorce as soon as possible. In return, he promises to pay her $60 a month for the support of their baby daughter.

"Arthur is ambitious, energetic, handsome and more affectionate to me than ever before. I am a widow, and he is my only child. He and Dorothy intend to convert this big old house into a tourist's hotel. Dorothy has a little money, which she would spend on the house.

"I don't know what to advise Gwendolyn to do. If I tell her it would be best for her to divorce Arthur, what would happen to her and the baby? The settlement Arthur has offered is not enough to keep her and her child. On the other hand, she could not expect to get any more, or perhaps as much, from a court order. She might marry again, but no girl can be sure of that.

"If I advise her to hold her ground, and not to give Arthur his freedom, where do I stand? Arthur easily could make it impossible for me, or Gwendolyn either, to remain in this house. There is a small cottage in the rear where I could live if he and Dorothy take over and change the house as they plan. At my age, I have to think of myself, too.

"Whenever Gwendolyn and I talk things over, she cries and says, 'Don't send me and my baby away. I don't know where we could go, or what we would do.' Then Arthur tells me 'Mother, fix things up for me in a hurry. Gwendolyn and I were never really rightful mates. Let's save what we can from the wreckage.' Miss Norris, what can I do in this sad situation?"

My advice, Catherine, is not going to be particularly palatable to any of you. There is no easy way out of this muddle. Gwendolyn's rights must be considered, too, as well as your son's desires and your wishes for security. Arthur married too young, too carelessly, in an emotional haze. So did Gwendolyn.

Marriage is Serious.

Now that Arthur has matured a bit, and has had a lot of hard experiences in war, he thinks he is ready for a more exciting wife. He is like thousands of other young men who want a complete re-deal on their return home. He has lived in a strange world where all normal values have been distorted or sneered at. He comes back disillusioned and cynical, tired and restless. It is not Gwendolyn that he has outgrown. It would be the same with any other girl. He just wants something different.

I advise Arthur and Gwendolyn to stick together for another year or maybe two. That is not very long, after all. Let him take his place in his community, standing by his wife and child, as an honorable husband and father. During this time it is likely that Arthur would again fall in love with his wife, and that the charms of their daughter, with the quiet pleasures of home life, would drive all thoughts of separation from the young man's mind. It has happened before. Arthur is just like so many other men, weak and selfish, but basically sound.

His daughter's charms . . .

'MARRY IN HASTE . . .'

After a man has been away at war for several years, he finds it hard to adjust to the old ways. Many young men who married just before they left realize now that they did not really love their wives, but were just overcome by an emotional urge that they couldn't resist. Particularly is this true of the teen-age marriages.

This is the suitation described in the letter Miss Norris answers today. Arthur met Gwendolyn when he was about to leave for overseas. Four weeks after they were married he went abroad.

Then a bombshell fell on this happy little household. Arthur wanted a divorce so that he could marry a WAC whom he had met overseas.

Sewing Machine Care

A clean sewing machine may solve problems such as noisy stitching, imperfect stitches or other common troubles. If the machine is dusted frequently and oiled regularly, cleaning is not often necessary. Good grade sewing machine oil is important since a poor grade deposits a gummy substance on the bearings and causes the machine to run hard. Oil should be placed in each oil hole and wherever two pieces of steel meet and there is motion.

EASTER SUNDAY

MARCH 28, 1948

EASTER is more to every grateful heart than the thrill of wearing beautiful new clothes. More than gladness that the long winter is over and Spring has come again. More than looking forward to the full blooming of a happy Summer. It is the renewal of hope in every heart that life can be good, a renewal of faith in the future, an acknowledgment of the joyous reassurance in those immortal words. "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."—The glorious words that have rolled down the centuries bringing solace and relief to the burdened, are needed today in a confused and anxious world. To Him who said them, let us pay the tribute of our presence in His House. He is Risen! Come to Church on Easter!

HISTORICAL REVIEW

rned off. Immediately after dinner, as we were afterwards told, nine men set about the work of opening the dam, which suddenly gave way, and taking Hiscox who was near the break, swept him into the ground sluice, down a shaft, through a tunnel down another shaft, through another portion of the tunnel, and again down the third shaft, and was rescued at the mouth of the tunnel by the miners who had hurried down from the mine. After this, the mine continued working with the other owner as manager-in-chief, but the mine was not paying.

Nine months later on February 12, 1866, just nine months to the day after the accident, a second accident occurred. Again a large cave had fallen, catching Jacob Finisterwald unawares, and he was buried to his armpits. While the men were trying to extricate him, he talked to them, assuring them that he was not hurt badly, but when they had gotten him out, he had ceased to breathe.

For a time the mine was closed, as it was probably under litigation, as there were debts against it, then offered for sale.

Three men, each with a borrowed $5000 were the purchasers. David Davis, John Stidger, and a third man whose name has escaped the writer's memory.

Six months later they sold the property to an English company for one hundred thousand dollars. It was claimed that the three men came out with $50,000 apiece as they had struck pay dirt before selling. This deal must have been about 1867, (I am sorry that I cannot give the exact date.)

George D. McLean was made superintendent and George E. Yates, foreman. Under this management, the mine was worked for many years and then closed down, as the mine was to use a miner's expression, worked out.

THE MANZANITA MINE

On Manzanita Hill much prospecting had been done in early years. Shafts had been sunk, and tunnels run, one of which we have been told was one-fourth mile long, but gold was not found in quantities to make it feasible to work farther into the hill.

It was learned afterwards, that the tunnels were too high to find the gold they sought as it was close to the bedrock.

We do not know when the mine was first opened up, but believe it must have been in 1867 or 1868. The property was owned we believe by a large company, as the Milton Mining Company who also owned mines at Columbia Hill and the Malakoff Mine at North Bloomfield.

In 1869, H. O. Hiscox, son of Otis Hiscox, was elected as foreman and held that position for years. Richard Thomas as superintendent, but know that later in the early eighties, H. C. Perkins was made superintendent. The mine paid well, the gold was found near the bedrock and also in the bedrock. We have been told that after the bedrock had been scraped and cleaned, a few months later the bedrock could be cleaned again, and would more than pay for the work done. After the mine had been closed down by the Valley people, the bedrock was rented in sections to Chinese and they made a good living from it.

THE BOSS MINE

Sometime in the early egihties, the Boss Mine was discovered west of the Manzanita Mine. We think considerable work was done but we do not know much about that as we were not living there at that time. There is no doubt much gold is still around the old town. A friend tells me that when he was there six years ago there were a few prospectors working there. It was only a ghost town then, so overgrown with Scotch Broom that one could not locate the homes, that had been there, though some of the buildings were left. Since then a fire swept through the town, destroying all the buildings but one, and another on Buckeye Hill which was built in 1865 or 1866, on a little farm which they owned and to which they, John Brown and family, moved when they sold their hotel to the Farrel Brothers and sisters.

The Buckeye and Manzanita mines were for many years the source from which the Sweetland people received their living. When these were done, the town soon became a ghost town.

County Government

AN EDITORIAL ANALYSIS OF THE SUPERVISORIAL RACE

By Harley M. Leete, Jr.

CANDIDATE FOR SUPERVISOR, NEVADA CITY DISTRICT

There is a basic question involved in the hotly contested race for supervisor.

The question is this: Are the voters going to elect a man with THE QUALIFICATIONS NEEDED to fill the job? Or are they going to elect a candidate whose major qualification is that HE NEEDS THE JOB?

Many, many years ago, the latter decision might have gotten by. Nevada county was a very small business.

Now the county is a huge concern, transacting hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of vital business every year.

This question has become vital to the taxpayer: "How much business ability, education and intelligence can the candidate contribute to solve the many and complex problems of the county?"

Wise voters will make their decision on a basis of how much the candidate can help the county, not how much the county can help the candidate!

(This is the first in a series of editorials. See the Nugget and the Nugget Shopper for the next: "Advertising For the Tourist Trade—A Key to Nevada County's Future.")

one case on the creek of a young fellow from Maine, who has been laid up with rheumatism pretty nearly all winter. He had a good claim and in order to hold it for him the boys have taken turns working it for him, putting in one day a week. We have taken out nearly enough to pay for his grub and now he is back working it himself and doing well.

Pard dug up his dust; it was under the chimney back of the cabin. I gave him two thousand five hundred dollars to go along with it and he has sent it down to the Bay by Freeman and Company's express. He says it will almost break his heart to part with "Jack," but Gleason has promised to take good care of both the dog and the horse. We have engaged seats and paid passage in Bower's stage to Sacramento and will take the boat from there down.

APRIL 27, 1851.—Back after a three day's trip. We had a great time and it has been a holiday that both Pard and I have enjoyed. It was like getting back to civilization again, although San Francisco is not the same sort of place as most eastern cities. There is a rush of people going and coming, men from the mines with their pile and men from the states on their way to make it. We have lived high while we were there; our meals averaged about two dollars each, but we did not begrudge it after a year's steady diet of pork and beans. The gambling houses were a sight and it was good for sore eyes to see so many well dressed and good looking women. Pard made his investment, buying about 20 fifty-vara lots about half a mile out on the Mission road and six over on North Beach. I never had less faith in an investment. Our land is nothing but a pile of white sand and, while there is some chance for North Beach to grow, the city will never get out to our Mission lots in a hundred years.

The neighbors were all glad to see us back and Jack went wild. I don't know which was the happiest —Pard or the dog. Nobody has bothered our claims; Gleason and Fisk had kept their contract and we will begin work again tomorrow.
